

Plan Ahead Now to Keep Warm This Winter!

How are you going to pay for your winter heating bills?

Did you receive Heating Assistance this past winter? If the answer is yes, you need to plan ahead now for how you are going to pay for your heat this coming winter.

If your income is less than 150% of the federal poverty income guidelines, you may receive a benefit. If your income is above 150% poverty, you will not qualify for assistance.

LIHEAP Application processing period is November 1, 2022 - May 31, 2023

FY 2023 Poverty Guidelines

of People in Household	Gross Monthly Income Less Than 150% of Poverty
1	$ 2,123.00
2	$ 2,861.00
3	$ 3,598.00
4	$ 4,336.00
5	$ 5,073.00
6	$ 5,811.00

*Please add $737.50 for each additional household member over 6 members

What Can You Do To Prepare?

- Contact your vendor and get on a budget plan: These plans take into consideration your annual usage and then set you up for a set, budget, amount each month. This spreads out the cost of heating and makes the payments more manageable and easier to budget for.
- Create your own “energy fund”: Start to put a little money aside each week/month to cover your heating bills when winter comes.
- Sign up for weatherization or seal up drafts in your home yourself: Anywhere you can feel cold air coming in, the heat can also escape. For more information on free and low-cost weatherization go to <https://www.ahfc.us/efficiency/energy-programs/weatherization/> or call Alaska Housing Finance Corporation at 1-800-478-2432.
- Look for other resources: Call 211, the statewide agency hotline, to see if there are other programs in your community that can help you.

If you have questions, please call BBNA Heating Assistance Program at 1-888-285-2262